VANDERBURGH COUNTY RESIDENT ARRESTED FOR TAX EVASION

A Vanderburgh County businessman has been taken into custody for failure to remit business taxes to the State of Indiana. James L. Carson, resident of Vanderburgh County and owner of the Dairy Queen Brazier in Newburgh, Indiana (Warrick County), was arrested on six class D felonies last Friday, January 11, 2002.

Carson is alleged to have failed to remit over $53,000 in income tax withheld from his employee's wages, as well as sales tax collected from customers over a three-year period.

The charges were filed by the Criminal Investigation Division of the Indiana Department of Revenue with the Warrick County Prosecuting Attorney as a result of an investigation into the business practices of the Newburgh Dairy Queen Brazier.
